The sports delegation includes: 1 head, 1-2 coaches, 1-2 referees and other officials by decision of the President of the national federation.

Sportsmen's dress code: red and blue kimonos, gloves for unifight with open toes, helmet, wrestlers with soft soles without edging, shin guards and instep, protective shell, mouthguard, sneakers for overcoming obstacle courses. The helmet and gloves must match the color of the kimono. Protective equipment should be worn under the kimono. Additional special bibs for women.

Dress code of the judges: black trousers, white shirt with short sleeves, black bow tie, soft black sports shoes, black socks, red and blue oversleeves.

5. Conditions of the competition

The procedure for the drawing of lots and the order of the fights is established (after the credentials committee and weigh-in) by the panel of judges, depending on the number of participants in each weight category.

The championship is held as a biathlon:

1. Passing the obstacle course: the obstacle course includes throwing a knife from a distance of 3 meters from pneumatic weapons from a distance of 10-15 meters. The athlete's miss at the target when throwing a knife or when shooting is punished by additional overcoming of an obstacle that precedes the line of shooting and throwing a knife (usually a "tunnel"). If at the same time the opponent hits the target, then he (the opponent) is awarded 1 point in the second round (for throwing and shooting separately). The athlete who finished first on the obstacle course with a difference of more than 10 seconds receives an additional bonus mark of 1 point, which is credited to him in the 2nd round, for every subsequent 5 seconds of advantage - an additional 1 point is awarded.

If the competitor who finished second is behind the first competitor by more than 50% of his time on the runway, he is withdrawn from the competition, and his opponent is awarded a clear victory. Winning a streak counts as one round won.

2. Fight in the ring or on the tatami:

Boys (14-15, 16-17 years old), juniors (18-20 years old), men - all fights (light), as well as preliminary fights (classic) - 2 rounds of 2 minutes of net time. Semi-final and final fights (classic) - 4 rounds, 2 minutes of net time;

Girls (14-15, 16-17 years old), juniors (18-20 years old) - 2 rounds of 1.5 minutes of net time at all stages of the competition;

Women - 2 rounds of 2 minutes of net time at all stages of the competition.

3. Competitions in the light and classic sections are held according to the Olympic system with elimination after the first defeat.

If there are 3 participants in a weight category, then competitions in this weight category can be held in a round robin system.

If there are 1-2 people in two consecutive weight categories, then they can be combined into one - heavier weight category. Such a decision during the drawing of lots must be made and approved by the protocol of the joint meeting of the referees of the Championship and the official heads of the sports delegations of the countries participating in the Championship.

Features of conducting fights in the light section (age categories of boys and girls (14-15, 16-17 years old), juniors (18-20 years old), men and women)

In fights in the light version, athletes will fight only while standing, without fighting while lying down. After the throw, the athletes are raised in a stance and the round continues. If the athlete gains 10 points or more than the opponent, then the round ends ahead of schedule, and he is declared the winner in the duel. If the athlete makes a clean throw - any throw on his back, then the fight is terminated and he is awarded a clean victory in the fight.

Evaluation of technical actions is carried out in accordance with the Competition Rules.

The overall victory in biathlon is awarded to the athlete who won an early victory on the obstacle course or in the fight in the ring, and if this did not happen - to the winner of 2 rounds out of 3.

If the athlete wins the first 2 rounds - on the obstacle course and the first round in the ring, then the fight is stopped and he is awarded the victory.

6. Determination of winners

The winner of the final match takes the first place, the loser - the second, the losers of the semifinal matches take the third place. The places of the rest of the athletes are determined in accordance with the circle in which they finished the competition. The losers in the ¼ of the finals are divided from 5th to 8th place, below the 8th place are not determined.

In the weight categories in which the places were played in a circular system, the winner and prize-winners are determined by the greatest number of victories, by the mutual meeting between the applicants for one place, by the number of victories won, by the least number of penalty points, etc.

To determine the winners and prize-winners in the unofficial team competition among the participating countries, the estimated indicators of the personal results of athletes are established: I place - 8 points, II place - 5 points, III place - 3 points, 5-8 place - 1 point.

7. Rewarding

Champions and prize-winners are awarded with medals and diplomas.

The prize-winning teams are awarded with cups.
